+non-league game

BYU had a 13-game winning streak over Utah until the Utes beat them in the 2004 tournament. The Cougars have a 12-4 record over Utah in the seven-year history of Miller Park, but the Utes won the game with the second-largest crowd, 2,863, in stadium history in 2002.

In March of 2004, a doubleheader at Franklin Covey Field in Salt Lake City between the two teams lasted 27 innings and eight hours. The Cougars won both of those games in extra innings including a BYU-record 17-inning marathon victory, 5-4.

BYU has a 203-89-1 record in the series which started in 1895 with a 0-0 tie in a bench-clearing brawl.

Cougars' Final Home Games of Regular Season

BYU, 32-18 overall and 14-7 in the Mountain West Conference (second place and two games ahead of Utah) hosts UVSC, 22-27, then Utah, 24-26 and 12-9. Game times have been changed for the Utah series because of BYU hosting NCAA Softball Regionals.

3B-#5 Steve Parker	RF-#17 Leon Johnson	CF-#1 Stephen Wells
LF-#24 Apana Nakayama	C-#10 J.T. Musso
DH-#16 Chase Frampton

Injuries

Kent Walton suffered a concussion in a collision at first base last Saturday, but should be available for the Utah series. Collin Fanning is still bothered by shin-splints, but available on game-day decisions. Utility player Jason Johnson is out indefinitely following a surgical procedure last week from an injury in practice. Shortstop Danny Vargas returned last month from a moderate strain of the MCL with a knee injury (game 1 at UNLV). Outfielder Jonathan Cluff is out for eight weeks with a broken foot (at Utah).

Radio Coverage

There will be live BYU radio for all of BYU's league games. KOVO 960 AM, with veteran broadcaster Brent Norton calling the play-by-play. These broadcasts are also available on the Dish Network as well as over the Internet. Links to the webcasts and audiocasts are on the BYU baseball's schedule page at www.byu-cougars.com.

BYU on TV Four Times

Four BYU games are televised this season--March 22 vs. TCU, April 5 vs. UNLV, and May 17 vs. Utah, all on both BYUTV and The Mountain. The BYUTV games are recorded in three languages: English, Spanish and Portuguese. BYU's 7-3 game at San Diego State was televised on The Mtn.

Coach Vance Law and staff

Vance Law became a grandpa in March. He played 14 years of pro ball, including 11 years in the majors with six different teams. In 2001 he was named Coach of the Year for the Mountain West Conference. The 50-year-old coach is in his eighth year at BYU and has a 228-183-2 (.554) record coming into the 2007 season. He is assisted by Ryan Roberts, in his fifth year at BYU. Pitching coach Bobby Applegate is in his fourth year with BYU, having last coached at the Air Force Academy. Volunteer assistant Paul Bassett is in his first year on the BYU staff.

BYU Scoring With Two Outs

The accompanying chart on page two shows BYU practices what Coach Vance Law preaches, you can still score with two outs. In 2005 BYU won 25 of its 39 games in come-from-behind fashion. In 2006 BYU won 16 of 33 games coming from behind. This season BYU has won 13 games coming from behind.

Double Plays in NCAA History
BYU's six double plays at UVSC two weeks ago ties several teams for the second-best mark in NCAA history. Combined with UVSC's three double plays in that game for a total of nine, that also ties two other games for the second-best mark in NCAA history.

NCAA Statistics

This week's NCAA statistics show BYU ranked first again in triples at 0.67 per game, Kent Walton ranked 25th in triples with a 0.13 average, Collin Fanning is ranked 27th in stolen bases (0.55) and Leon Johnson is ranked 29th in stolen bases (0.54), and Jesse Craig is ranked 23rd in pitching victories with nine. The Cougars also rank 15th in double plays (1.04) and 22nd in stolen bases at 1.86 thefts per game.

Team Notes

- Stephen Wells leads the team with a current eight-game hitting streak, followed by Kasey Ko with seven and Steve Parker at four. Kent Walton led the team with a 16-game hitting streak, hitting in the first eight games this season. Walton had an 11-game hitting streak last season, too. Collin Fanning led the team with a 14-game hitting streak ended at TCU. Kasey Ko had a 10-game streak also ended at TCU. Leon Johnson had a nine-game streak this season ended against TCU. Wells had an eight-game hitting streak ended vs. UNLV. Apana Nakayama had a seven-game hitting streak ended at Portland. Parker had a seven-game hitting streak ended at New Mexico.
- Game-winning RBI this season have come from Mike McKeever (a two-run single in game one at Sam Houston State, a single in game three vs. Gonzaga), Jonathan Cluff (a two-run single in game three at Sam Houston State & a two-run triple in game two vs. Gonzaga), Stephen Wells (solo homer in the 10th inning vs. Missouri and a one-run triple vs. AFA in game 3), Austin Hall (double vs. SUU, single vs. UVSC in game one, double vs. UVSC in game 3), Dan Vargas (triple in game one & single in game three vs. Northern Colorado), Kasey Ko (a two-run double in game two at UNLV, a double against Binghamton, a two-run single vs. UNLV game 3 and a two-out single in the 13th at SDSU), Apana Nakayama (a two-run homer against Binghamton, a single vs. UNLV in game 1, a single vs. UNLV in game 2 and a solo homer at TCU), Collin Fanning (single in game three at UNLV, single in game one vs. Washington) and J.T. Musso (a two-run homer in game two vs. Washington), Steve Parker (a one-run triple vs. AFA in game 2, a one-run double at UVSC and a one-run double at New Mexico in game 3). and Kent Walton (a sac-fly in game one at New Mexico and a 3-run homer vs. Southern Utah in game 3).
- This year BYU is 4-2 in extra-inning games. Last season BYU was 2-0 in extra-inning games. In 2005 BYU was 1-2 in extra-inning contests.

Ticket Prices

Reserve seats at Larry H. Miller Field are $5 for the lower and upper sections behind home plate. General admission seats are $5 for adults, $4 students, $15 for a family or team pass and groups of 10 or more are $2 each.

Attendance and Record at Miller Field

BYU has drawn 147,478 fans in six seasons since the opening of Larry H. Miller Field in 2001, for an average of 1,446 in 102 games (only 11 of which were doubleheaders). At Miller Park, the Cougars have an 80-33 (.708) record in six seasons, including a night record of 46-21 (.687) for an average of 1,600 fans. The Cougars have ranked nationally in attendance in all six years at Miller Field. (See chart at end of release for updated figures.)

Attendance Ranks Nationally

Attendance at Larry H. Miller field ranked 43rd nationally in 2006 with an average of 1,303 fans in 20 games and a total of 26,058 fans. BYU was 37th nationally in 2005 with an average of 1,442 in 18 games and a total of 25,952 fans.

Seventh Full Year at Home in New Ballpark

This is BYU's seventh full season at Miller Field, named in honor of Larry H. and Gail Miller, who made a significant financial contribution toward the facility. The baseball field is built on the site the original field was constructed on in 1969 and is named Larry H. Miller Field. The baseball portion seats 2,204 (675 in the lower bowl) and mirrors a back-to-back concept with the adjoining softball field and a shared press box. Both fields have lights. The field measures 400 feet in center, 388 in the alleys and remains at 345 down the lines. BYU played its first night games in Provo with the opening of Miller Park.

Last Year's Attendance

The crowd of 2,810 fans in game one vs. TCU is the third-best in Miller Park history and the sixth-best home crowd in BYU history. The 26,058 fans drawn for the 2006 home season is the second-best season total for BYU baseball.

Regarding BYU this season

- BYU has three current players who are married (Jesse Craig, Matthew Jensen and Clayton Barnes).
- Incorporated into this year's team are two players who have just finished serving two-year Church missions (Leon Johnson and J.D. Stambaugh).
- Four players transferred to BYU this season (Collin Fanning, Leon Johnson, Mike McKeever, and Jacob Perez).
- Among those throwing batting practice to BYU again this season is former Cy Young winner Vernon Law (1960 Pittsburgh Pirates), father of BYU head coach Vance Law. Vernon turned 77-years-old in March of 2007 and had seven-by-pass heart surgery two years ago.

On the Road Again

The Cougars traveled more than 11,000 miles this season. Early-season Texas trip, road trips to Oregon, Tennessee, Kansas and Texas and Washington by airplane. Prior to conference play the Cougars netted 6,275 miles. By season's end they will have traveled a total of 8,574 miles for non-conference games.

Senior Trio, 13 Froshies

There are only three seniors on the current squad—Jesse Craig, Apana Nakayama and Matt Jensen, and 13 freshmen. The ages range from 24-year-old Apana Nakayama to 18-year-old Blaine Howell—he was 17 years-old when he enrolled last Fall at BYU.

International Flavor

There are five foreign countries represented and five foreign languages spoken on this year's baseball team. The Cougars have 10 players who volunteered two years for Church missions. Seven of the 10 spent their mission service outside the United States, including Apana Nakayama, who did not speak Japanese until he served his mission. There are five languages other than English spoken on the team (French, Japanese, Russian, Spanish, Thai). See page six for a list of these players and their respective areas of service and languages spoken. Page five also includes a list of former Cougar baseball players who are currently serving missions.

Graduation Last Month

Seven current or former BYU baseball players graduated last month: from this year's team Apana Nakayama, sociology. And from previous teams: Joshua Barrett, communications; Anthony Bingham, political science; Jeff Hiestand, health science; Adrian Molina, sociology; James Platt, exercise science; and Patrick Wells, health science.

Leon and Siberia

BYU outfielder Leon Johnson had the following note in Baseball America's Preview: "10—Size, in millions of kilometers, of Siberia, where Brigham Young OF Leon Johnson spent the last two seasons on a Mormon mission. He's the younger brother of Devil Rays prospect Elliott Johnson."

Initialize It

RBI are some of the most famous initials in baseball and those are important as BYU competes as a D-1 member of the NCAA looking for a good RPI. Coach Vance Law, who last played for the A's, has five siblings whose first name all begin with the letter V and he has a son who played on the team and is serving a Church mission in the U.K. One of the R.M.'s who will be returning from a Church mission along with Law's son is Freshman All-America Sean McNaughton, who is currently serving in Washington, D.C. Only three team members served missions in the U.S.A. Law and Coach Ryan Roberts both coached at UVSC. UNLV and TCU are the only two teams in the MWC that BYU plays at Larry H. Miller Field and away this season. BYU has two players who go by their initials, instead of their first or middle names. J.T. Musso's proper name is John Thomas. J.D. Stambaugh's proper name is Jonathan David.

They Said It This Season

- "Their guy (Muir) stretched the plate pretty good and worked both sides with his fastball," said Sam Houston State Coach Mark Johnson. "I was disappointed that we hit so many fly balls and got behind in the count so much. (Muir) kept them in the game and let them get to their closer."
- "BYU has as athletic of a team as there is in the country and Jesse Craig was nothing short of outstanding," said TCU Coach Jim Schlossnagle.
- "Craig's good. He's tough to see early. I don't know if it was the lighting or what. His ball has a lot of run to it," said TCU player Steven Trout. "We weren't picking it up early, but finally when we could see it okay, we put some good swings on the ball, but he was a good pitcher."
- "We didn't have answers for them defensively, and we gave up a lot of runs," Washington Coach Ken Knutson said. "We just couldn't stop them. Every time we got close, they got more."
- "It was a great, great, great pitching performance by Jesse Craig," said New Mexico color analyst Mike Foote, former UNM & Cincinnati Reds player and father of current UNM centerfielder. "We just saw the next MWC pitcher of the week give a tremendous performance. He has a good fastball that he located well on the inside and outside corners, mixing it up well and not making any mistakes or giving the Lobos any momentum."
- "Jesse (Craig) is such a kind guy off the field and is such a competitor when he takes the rubber. He's a very, very good pitcher," BYU Coach Vance Law said. "He's a dominant pitcher. I'm anxious to see what professional scouts think of him now. If he's not the pitcher of the year (MWC) this year, in my estimation something is wrong."

They Said It Last Season

- "That may be one of the finest plays I've ever seen a pitcher (Jesse Craig) make, said BYU Coach Vance Law. "And he catches it on one hop and gets up quick enough to get the guy at home plate. An unbelievable play," in reference to the sixth inning of his 12-3 victory over SDSU.
- "He (Jesse Craig) had a gutsy performance and I'm proud of the way he competed and battled back," said BYU Coach Vance Law of the junior's 135 pitches in a 4-2 victory at Washington. "He still had good zip on his fastball and located well. He pitched like the top pitcher that he is."
- "Jordan (Muir) did a great job," said UNLV coach Buddy Gouldsmith, of the BYU freshman who pitched eight innings of scoreless relief, allowing four hits, striking out five and walking two in BYU's 9-5 nationally-televised victory at UNLV. "He's a former UNLV camper and I can't say enough about him. He kept the ball down in the zone and forced guys to swing at pitches you can't swing at."
- "He's (Muir) good on that inside corner," said BYU radio analyst Dick Belliston, former Detroit Tiger Scout. "You just don't see that from a freshman in college."

2007 BYU Team Highlights

- Mike McKeever's two-out single to left-center scoring two runs, including the game-winner in a 17-8 victory at Sam Houston State.
- Steve Parker hitting a three-run homer to right-center with two out in the eighth inning for BYU's first home run of the season in a 17-8 victory at Sam Houston State.
- Jonathan Cluff's soft liner past shortstop to center field for a pair of RBI, including the game-winner in a 5-2 victory at Sam Houston State.
- Apana Nakayama's blast over right field of a head-high fastball for his first home run of the season in a 5-2 victory at Sam Houston State.
- Stephen Wells' sliding left field catch in the third inning of a 4-3 victory which prevented a run scoring at the University of Portland.
- Brad Kidd, an Oregon native, entering the 4-3 Portland game with two on and two out and striking out his first batter in the sixth inning.
- J.D. Stambaugh striking out the first four batters he faced last Saturday at the University of Portland, coming in relief in the seventh inning with the score 4-3 and a man on first.
- Kent Walton stretching a double into a triple by reading the throw from left

- Brad Kidd snuffing out UNLV in game one at Provo with three innings working his curveball magic to shutout the Rebels for a victory.
- Ko, then Leon Johnson scoring from first on separate plays in the nine-run seventh inning in game three vs. UNLV in Provo.
- Nakayama hitting a second-pitch towering homer to end the the nine-run seventh inning in game three vs. UNLV in Provo.
- Jesse Craig's superb 5-0, complete game shutout over TCU, the first in 53 Frog games, stopping a 19-game TCU winning streak at home with 130 pitches.
- Collin Fanning's lead-off triple in the seventh against Air Force (game one) followed by Kent Walton beating out a super attempt by the Falcon shortstop to bring in Fanning for the tying run.
- Walton leaping for the catch, then tumbling back to regain his feet to turn one of six double plays at Utah Valley State.
- Craig going the distance in a 3-0 victory at New Mexico
- Kasey Ko diving into the stands to catch a foul ball down the first base line in game one at New Mexico.
- Jensen striking out the side in the 5-3 victory at New Mexico, including the final batter with two out, full count and two men on base in the ninth.
- Nakayama and Wells each falling a homer shy of the cycle in consecutive games against New Mexico and Southern Utah, respectively.
- BYU winning consecutive 13-inning games at San Diego State, the later of which featured a pair of homers by Wells.

Apana Nakayama

A homer shy of the cycle in game three at New Mexico. Apreseason All-Mountain West Conference selection. All-Mountain West Conference Tournament 2005. Redshirted in 2006 due to a knee injury. Hit a walk-off double on full count with two outs in BYU's 13-12 victory over San Diego State. Ranked through much of the 2005 season as one of the toughest to strike out in the NCAA. Had a 14-game hitting streak in 2005 and led the team with 27 multiple hit games. Nakayama was selected as position player of the year in 2000 by the Hawai'i High School Athletic Association and was Sportsman of the Year in 2000 for the Honolulu Quarterback Club. He led his team to two state baseball titles in 1999 and 2000. Prepped at Molokai High where he was coached by his father, Ken Nakayama. Majoring in sociology/law enforcement and graduated last April.

Jesse Craig

MWC Pitcher of the Week for 5-0 shutout at TCU in 2007 ... his cumulative GPA of 3.82 in exercise science is higher than this season's ERA ... named for CoSida Academic All-District ... Last season was second team All-MWC, MWC Scholar-Athlete and Academic All-MWC. Named MWC Pitcher of the week vs. New Mexico State. He was an Academic All-American at the Community College of Southern Nevada in 2005. The righty was selected as the team's most outstanding pitcher in 2005. He was drafted out of Basic High School by the Atlanta Braves in the 36th round of 2001 but opted to play college ball in his home state of Nevada. His Southern Nevada Coyotes won the league title and placed second in the conference tourney in 2005. He led his team in strikeouts and innings pitched. Craig averaged just over one strikeout per inning. In 2002 he also batted .274 for the Coyotes with 2 HR and 21 RBI.

Coaches

2—Vance Law, Head Coach, 29—Ryan Roberts, Assistant Coach, 34—Bobby Applegate, Pitching Coach, 36—Volunteer Coach Paul Bassett. * Letters

For the second year in a row, BYU baseball has used boxing as its offseason program. The idea came from BYU pitching coach Bobby Applegate, who spent five years as an assistant baseball coach at the Air Force Academy, where all freshmen are required to take a combative course such as wrestling or boxing.

Applegate says the skill sets required for boxing make it a natural fit for cross training. Fast-twitch fibers firing in the upper body and the conditioning workout for upper body, along with leg endurance and foot speed are some of the physical benefits. Boxing builds confidence, mental toughness and teaches the importance of quality decision-making.

The results of the pugilism transfer over to baseball, not only in conditioning, but later in the season when players are faced with tough decisions on the field. Last year only the BYU pitchers used the boxing as a training program, but the success was such that the entire team joined the workouts this year at LA Boxing.

TEAM COIN BRINGS UNITY

By Mattson Newell
BYU Athletic Media Relations

PROVO, Utah (February 6, 2007)—This season the Cougar baseball team will once again be carrying a coin with them at all times.

The tradition of the coin was started at the beginning of the 2004 season and has continued ever since. The coin was one of the many things BYU pitching coach Bobby Applegate brought with him from the Air Force Academy. The coins are given out each fall to each player after the team runs up the white “Y” on a nearby mountain which overlooks the campus.

The coin reminds each player of the commitments they have made to the team and the accomplishment of running up the mountain. In 2004 the coin had inscribed on one side “The Road to the Top” and “We Go as a Team.”

Last year the 2005 coin had phrasing like “No One Left Behind,” “Bound By Baseball,” and “United By Brotherhood.”

This year the coin has phrasing like, “The road to the top of the mountain goes through the Y,” and “We depend on each other and the “Y” depends on us.” It also shows Omaha and the BYU Law School on the coin.

“It sounds kind of corny,” head coach Vance Law said of using the do-it-for-the team clichés. “But we rely on each other. We ran up to the ‘Y’ together and it was a total team effort, guys didn’t leave each other behind, we ran together.”

In 2005 one side of the coin was engraved with a team photo taken at the top of “Y” mountain. Around it are the words “Preparation, Execution, Champions.”

The various military institutions have similar programs. In the military each soldier has the opportunity to earn a specially minted coin. The coins are issued by a company’s commanding officer and are a very big honor. Each individual coin is minted especially for a given unit. Also, each individual military operation—such as Operation Iraqi Freedom—has its own coin created for the soldiers who participated.

The soldiers are required to always keep their coin with them. As encouragement, the military has developed an incentive. At any time a soldier can pull his coin on a fellow soldier. If his counterpart does not have his coin at the time the other pulls it, the counterpart has to buy a drink that night. However, if the counterpart can show the coin, he gets the free drink.

BYU has developed a similar system. If a player or coach pulls the coin on his teammate (or coach) and the teammate doesn’t have the coin, the teammate must buy a drink for all of his teammates who have theirs.

The coin provides a great opportunity to create and build team unity.

MUSSO CATCHING ON AT THE 'Y'

BY JEFF LETOFSKY
PUEBLO CHIEFTAIN 4/14/07

The ceiling is unlimited for J.T. (John Thomas) Musso.

The former Pueblo County High School standout is currently making a name for himself as the starting catcher for Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. A sophomore, Musso has started 33 of the 34 games thus far for the Cougars, who are 21-13 overall and 6-3 in the Mountain West Conference.

Musso, at 6-foot-1, 205 pounds, is your prototypical catcher. He has a solid frame and a rocket for an arm. In fact, he's thrown out 34 percent of runners attempting to steal (16 of 47), nearly unheard of at the collegiate level.

In addition, he's picked four runners off the bases and has made only four errors for a .982 fielding percentage.

"J.T. is a great young man. We really, really enjoy having him here," BYU Head Coach Vance Law said. "He's turned into a pretty good leader. He's handled our pitching staff and is catching nearly 100 percent of the time."

Musso has started to get untracked offensively following a slow start. He's currently hitting at a .259 clip with 29 hits in 112 at-bats with 20 runs scored. He has six doubles, two triples and two home runs, his last round-tripper coming Wednesday when he blasted a two-run shot off the top of the scoreboard at Miller Park. He also has driven in 26 runs, fourth on the team, and stolen two bases.

"He keeps getting better at the plate," Law said. "He's had a ton of clutch RBIs. He's hitting eighth in the lineup and his RBI total is pretty impressive. He's picking up a lot of stragglers left by the other guys."

"There's a couple positions - catcher and shortstop - where you don't put a lot of stock in batting average and run production. It comes down to execution, when and how you get your hits. J.T. has produced runs when we needed them."

Musso sat on the bench behind senior Casey Nelson his freshman season, watching, listening and learning. With Nelson graduating, Musso knew he'd have a chance at fighting for the starting catching job this season.

"Basically, I won the job in the fall and haven't looked back since," Musso said.

Musso said one of the reasons he chose BYU was the ability to play by the time he was a sophomore.

"When I took my recruiting trip to BYU, I was told I'd get a shot to start my sophomore year," he said. "A big part of signing was the ability to play early and not having to sit around and wait for a junior ahead of me to graduate."

Over the past few weeks, Musso has really come into his own, especially offensively where he's boosted his average nearly 50 points.

"It's all been about confidence," he said. "I've got on a hot streak and everything has taken off. Every day in practice I'm always trying to do the little things like taking extra batting practice. Having someone like Coach Law to go to, who has 14 years of major league experience, is nice."

Musso was a switch hitter in high school and his freshman year but has returned to just hitting right-handed.

"I messed up my back swinging left-handed so I went back to strictly hitting right-handed," Musso said. "It took about 100 at-bats to be able to adjust to breaking pitches on the right side again. But I had to quit switch hitting because it hurt my back on the left side."

Still, Musso's main job is to handle the BYU pitching staff, coached by former Colorado State University-Pueblo All-American pitcher Bobby Applegate, who was responsible for recruiting Musso.

Through 32 games, the Cougar staff has posted a 4.35 ERA, an acceptable number in this day and age of the aluminum bat.

Applegate, in his fourth season at BYU, remembers the first time he saw Musso.

"I saw him at the Kansas University camp," Applegate said. "I was coaching a team and he was on the other team. He was catching and he blocked 10 dirtballs out of 15 pitches. He dug out every single one. And on pop ups he hustled after every single one. On effort alone I thought this is a guy who can play catcher at our level."

Adjusting to the college atmosphere along with being around The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, a major component of attending BYU, has gone well for Musso. He's studying communications and would like to some day work a front office job for a professional sports team.

"Coming from Pueblo, where mostly there are Catholics, has been different," Musso said. "But nobody has pushed the LDS thing on me. They ask me why I'm attending BYU and when I tell them I'm on the baseball team, they leave me alone."

While getting a degree is his top priority, Musso is hoping to pursue a professional baseball career as well.

"Playing in the major leagues is something I've always dreamed about," he said. "Every day in practice we talk about it. Definitely, it's something I'd like to pursue."

Musso had a tremendous high school career at Pueblo County as a two-sport athlete. He was among the state's leading hitters as a senior in baseball with a .554 average and played quarterback in football for the Hornets. In addition to BYU, he was recruited by Kansas and CSU-Pueblo out of high school to play baseball.

CRAIG IS BYU'S ACE

BY MATTSON NEWELL

ATHLETIC MEDIA RELATIONS

Jesse Craig has taken to heart a quote he got from a fortune cookie that he now carries around in his wallet that says "We are what we repeatedly do—excellence then is not an act but a habit."

Jesse Craig's first experience with baseball came when he was five-years old and played on a tee-ball team in Henderson, Nev.

"I just liked it from the get-go," Craig said. "Ever since then my love for the game has just grown."

Craig was introduced to baseball by his step-dad Bill.

"He married my Mom when I was around four," Craig said. "He grew up in Long Island, N. Y., and was a big baseball fan and a big Yankees fan. He brought that passion for baseball into our home, and it just grew from there."

The Sandlot

Growing up Craig was a die-hard Yankees fan and loved the movie "Sandlot."

"Sandlot was cool because that is what baseball is all about," Craig said. "Just playing for the love of the game, that is baseball at its purest."

When Craig was 13, he was pitching in a game when all of a sudden he heard a loud pop and was in immense pain.

"I was sort of in shock at first," Craig said. "The pain of having my elbow broken probably wasn't the worst of it. After the doctors had taken care of it, they told me that I couldn't touch a ball for nine months. That was the hardest part, being a 13-year old kid and not being able to do too much."

Craig was a starting pitcher for Basic High School in Henderson and was actually selected in the 36th round by the Atlanta Braves in the 2001 MLB draft (he is one of five players on this year's BYU team who have been drafted). Craig declined Atlanta's offer due to his desire to serve a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He finished his mission to Rochester, N. Y., in 2003. Craig credits his mission with helping him come out of his shell.

"I have always shied away from being really social," Craig said. "I don't really like the spotlight. I would go to school, study and play baseball and that was it."

Many people always asked Craig if he played any other sports besides baseball because of his 6-foot-3, 230-pound frame. While Craig admits that he likes playing other sports, he has always just stuck with baseball.

Senior Jesse Craig is scheduled to pitch twice a week this season.

An Emerging Star

After his mission Craig moved on to play baseball at Southern Nevada Community College. In his sophomore season there, Craig posted an 8-2 overall record and had a 1.30 ERA. This caused a lot of schools to come calling including Oklahoma State, Oregon State, Tennessee and BYU.

The decision for Craig came down to BYU and Oklahoma State.

"The coach at Oklahoma State really impressed me," Craig said. "My first day there I walked into his office, and he threw down a phone book on the table and opened it up to the Church section and showed me all of the LDS Churches that were in the area. That was really cool to me, being a Latter-day Saint and having this coach respect my religion."

Craig ultimately chose BYU because it just felt right.

"It was actually a pretty humbling experience when I told BYU that I wanted to come here, because just a couple of days before I had told assistant coach Bobby Applegate that I wasn't going to come," Craig said. "So I had to pick up the phone and tell them that I had changed my mind and that I wanted to come to BYU."

Becoming a Cougar

In Craig's first season with the Cougars he started off a little rough going 0-5, but then bounced back to finish the year on a 7-2 tear and lead the team with a 4.70 ERA. He was also named second-team All-Mountain West Conference, Academic All-MWC, MWC Pitcher of Week (vs. New Mexico St.) and a Cougar Club Scholar Athlete.

"It was a big adjustment for me coming to this league because they play with aluminum bats," Craig said. "In the league I came from they used wood bats, so it took me a lit-the while to get adjusted."

Craig also met his wife Stephanie during his junior year and the two were married on May 13 the day after he had pitched a strong eight-inning performance to give the Cougars a 12-3 win over the San Diego State Aztecs.

"That had to be one of my most memorable moments," Craig said. "Pitching as well as I did and then the next day getting married; it was just an all-around great week."

Speaking on consenting to Craig's choice to get married during a pivotal series Coach Law said, "He's probably the only player on the team I'd do it for because he's mature. I might have been upset if he only gave us two innings and given up seven runs."

Craig said that he and his fiancée chose the midseason date because of the MLB draft this past June. He said that he didn't know what was going to happen and wanted to have as much time as he could with Stephanie before the draft.

Unfortunately the draft did not work out the way Craig would have hoped as he went undrafted.

"It was a little disappointing," Craig said. "But it just gives me motivation to work harder and come out and have a great senior season."

Craig is excited to have Stephanie take part in his life and be there every step of the way.

"She doesn't know too much about baseball, so I help her out with that," Craig said. "But honestly that was one of the things that I liked about her. She didn't like me because I was a baseball player; she liked me for me."

Jesse Craig

Future Plans

Craig knows that making it to the Majors will take a lot of hard work and effort.

"I look at guys like Roger Clemens (Houston Astros) and Greg Maddux (Chicago Cubs) and can just imagine all of the time and effort that they have put into it," Craig said. "In my opinion Maddux can do anything he wants with a baseball, because he has taken the time to figure it out and to practice. He is constantly learning."

Craig knows that with being a pitcher that comes a lot of pressure at times, but he doesn't let it get to him.

"I know that if I go out there and give it my best effort then I will be satisfied," Craig said. "I always want to leave it all on the field."

Craig is majoring in exercise science with an emphasis in athletic training, but says that it is still his dream to make it to the majors. A lot of people doubt if he will because of his age. Craig is 23 right now and in baseball circles that is considered to be too old when you can draft someone five years younger than he, but Craig doesn't let that get him down.

"My dream is to make it to the Majors," Craig said. "I just need to keep working hard, and hopefully that day will come. I can't worry about what other people say or do. I just have to know that if I just keep on working and never give up, then it will all pay off in the end."

FAVORITE STADIUMS

By Eric Sorenson
CSTV.com, May 9, 2006

A friend of mine asked me the other day what my favorite college baseball stadium was. That got me thinking. Hmmm, tough but fair question.

What would be your favorite place to watch a ballgame? I've been to a good number of college ballparks over the years, and after getting kick-started by my friends' question, I thought I'd list here my favorite places to take in a game.

But first, remember two things; First, obviously, I haven't been to every stadium in the country, including some of those you've seen on those previous "Best Stadiums" lists in Baseball America. Second, my reasons for including some here are probably not the same as yours might be. And third, Rosenblatt Stadium doesn't count. It gets Best Stadium Emeritus status here. So here you go, my Top 5 college stadiums to take in a game:

5. (Tie) UNCG Ballpark, UNC-Greensboro and McKie Field, Miami Univ.
4. Dudy Noble Field, Mississippi State
3. Reckling Park, Rice

2 . Miller Park, Brigham Young
I visited this park in 2001 for a few games when the bowels of the stadium were still being constructed. But what a shrine for college baseball! It has 2,500 stadium seats, very little netting behind home plate and a big league feel. And that wicked-huge white tensile roof that resembles the "peaks" of the nearby mountains (similar to the Denver airport) is just too cool. It also has a nice plaza area that is shared with the softball complex behind it. First class.
Drawback: Too bad the season doesn't extend further into summer. Some of the March and April night games can be a bit on the chilly side.

1. Eddy D. Field Stadium, Pepperdine

NAKAYAMA LEADS BYU BASEBALL TEAM

By Jeremy Twitchell
Deseret Morning News 3/22/07

On paper, Apana Nakayama's collegiate baseball journey has only spanned about 10 miles—the distance from Utah Valley State College, where he spent his first two years of eligibility, to Brigham Young University, where he spent the last two.

But factor in an LDS mission and the knee injury that confined him to the dugout last season, and you've got a long, strange trip that spans seven years.

"It's good to be back playing," Nakayama said. "I'm happy, I'm excited; especially this year, being a senior."

Nakayama was initially recruited by BYU out of high school in Hawaii, but the arrangements fell through and he instead began at UVSC. After his sophomore season in 2002, Nakayama transferred to BYU but first left on an LDS mission to Japan.

He returned for his junior season in 2005, in which he was the only BYU player to appear in all 59 games and led the team with 88 hits before finding his groove in the post-season, hitting .615 in the Mountain West Conference Tournament and being named to the All-Tournament team.

When the season ended, he went to play summer ball in the Cape Cod league, but blew his knee out early in the season.

Coaches hoped to have Nakayama back for the 2006 season, but he made the decision to wait a year and make sure he was fully rehabbed. It was a difficult decision, and when the Cougars dropped their first eight games, it hit Nakayama all the harder.

"I wanted to try to help the team with my bat, but it was a decision I made to get better and not re-injure my knee so I could come back the next year," Nakayama said. "But it was really hard, because I knew what the seniors were going through and what the team was going through."

The Cougars rebounded and finished the season strong, compiling a 33-28 record and finishing second in the MWC. However, with eight of the team's top 10 hitters gone for this season, BYU was hurting for offense as this season began.

BYU's Apana Nakayama, left, dives back to first as Utah first baseman Trevor Eastman dives to make the tag during a doubleheader in Provo in March 2005. (

Apana Nakayama

"We lost a lot of meat in the line-up," said BYU head coach Vance Law. "We really needed a run producer, and Apana certainly fits that mold. He hasn't had the kind of year yet that I expect him to—he hasn't really gotten hot— but once he does, he's going to really help us take off."

Through 20 games, Nakayama is batting .305 with 11 RBIs and shares the team lead in runs (18) and home runs (2). But he's only begun to scrape his potential; Law said he thinks Nakayama is capable of hitting .400 with 10-20 home runs and 70-80 RBIs on the season.

Nakayama says his knee feels fine now, though he can't squat and so his former position of catcher is out of the question. However, he has no problem running, so his transition to first base/designated hitter has been smooth so far.

But, Law said, the physical aspect of a comeback can sometimes be the easy part.

"I think (coming back) is more a mental thing, especially after coming off a mission and then after a year, getting hurt," Law said. "Basically all you do is lift and sit through practice without ever being in a game, and that's really hard on guys."

Nakayama and Law both agreed that the senior, one of just three on the team this year, placed too much pressure on himself to lead the team early in the year. But with a number of younger players coming on strong (three underclassmen are hitting .340 or better), Nakayama said he doesn't feel as much pressure and is beginning to relax.

After he graduates in April and finishes this season, Nakayama hopes to play ball at the next level. Law, a former pro player himself, said Nakayama has the potential and deserves a shot.

Nakayama has high hopes but is prepared to move on with his life if things don't work out and has nothing but fond memories of his career, both at UVSC and BYU.

"You build a friendship with everyone and there's just that team chemistry and camaraderie," he said. "Overall, baseball's not just a game, but you build friendships that you probably won't ever lose with players. They stick with you for the rest of your life."
